

Paul Hrebenak

Born in Grand Forks, North Dakota, the son of a U.S. Air Force captain, Paul Hrebenak, grew up in California's Central Valley, where he lived up until 1990. Paul completed his schooling in Northern Virginia attending George Washington University where he studied international affairs. After college, he became a U.S Agency for International Development contractor, working in Sudan and Haiti on multiple projects. In 2007 he joined the Washington, D.C. Metropolitan Police Department, where he continues to serve as a sworn law enforcement officer. Paul and his partner, James Fraser, moved to Hillsboro in 2020 and are currently renovating an 18th-century stone house, which they intend to operate as a bed and breakfast. Paul was appointed to serve on the Hillsboro Town Council in November 2021.

